Sloppy Noise Photozine was started in December 2010 with a focus of documenting underground punk, metal, and hardcore bands playing shows. Some bands are nationally recognized touring acts while others are local legends who only play once every few months. The first issue was printed via Xerox in February 2011 with a limited run of 50, and is also viewable for free online.

The zine is currently based in Michigan and is always looking for new photographers to contribute, donations, and info about upcoming shows in the Michigan area.
